Why Dental X-Rays Are Recommended

Not all of the tooth surfaces and their supporting structures are visible.

To complete a thorough dental examination it may be recommended that some radiographs be taken.

Dental radiographs are required :-

- ◇ To check around any large restorations and in between the teeth for any decay or infection.
- ◇ To investigate the tissues which support the teeth for periodontal disease (chronic gum infection).
- ◇ To detect other developing problems early.
- ◇ Early diagnosis will reduce the amount of treatment required.
